2. What is “Innovation challenge fund 4th call”?

The “Innovation challenge fund 4th call” objective is to boost start-up creation and improve the innovation ecosystem in Albania. This is done by offering an opportunity for access to finance through an open, transparent and competitive application process, which provides applicants with a one-off, limited-duration grant to overcome the uncertainties that inhibit innovation, research, and development. The assumption is that without challenge-fund support, such activities are either unlikely to happen, or will occur at a later stage, with reduced developmental effects. The fund is managed by a team linked to the Embassy of Sweden in Tirana and applications are only accepted in English to allow a transparent selection process.

The fund has two separate application windows. Window 1 is open for innovative start-ups in an early stage of development. Window 2 is open for organizations engaged in services to innovative start-ups, i.e. innovation service providers to upgrade their capacity further and/or develop new services to the innovation and start-up community in Albania. These actors are hereon after referred to as Innovation Support Organizations (ISOs).

Window 2 of the “Innovation challenge fund 4th call” focuses on supporting a network of ISOs that have the capacities to support start-ups (defined as a newly emerged business venture within the first five years of operation, including viable but non-registered business ideas) from various sectors. Through the “Innovation challenge fund 4th call” the selected ISOs should be able to increase the quality of their organization and services – both in terms of organizational management and in-service delivery.

The “Innovation challenge fund 4th call” will have four calls of proposals, all of which will be open to applicants eligible under Window 1 and 2. The grantees will be selected on a Competitive basis.

3. Who can apply?

These providers might be private, public or NGO entities, for-profit or non-profit, already in operation or in an early stage of development (minimum 12 month). University-based innovation providers are especially encouraged to apply, as well as collaborations between academia and business along the triple helix concept.

The call will be open to all service providers as per the above mentioned specifications, but priority will be given to those providers who offer services in the following focus areas: programmes that support female entrepreneurship / programmes that facilitate linkages and access to potential investors and private sector / programmes that facilitates access to regional and / or international networks / programs that better connect the Balkan Ecosystem / programmes that support Green / circular economy / and programmes that support digital solutions.
